

3rd International Multidisciplinary Conference

Evaluation of the training quality in higher education

Islamic University of Lebanon (IUL), Khaldeh Highway, Beirut, Lebanon

November, 26th - 27th 2015

The “Bologna Process” implies that the signatory parties undertake to implement policies for continuous improvement of the quality of the training programs in their higher education institutions. Seeking harmonization within the European area of higher education, these countries have established a number of principles, rules and standards concerning the assessment of the quality of training in higher education: European Standards and Guidelines for quality assurance in the European higher education area (ESG). The first principle of the ESG is that it is the institutions of higher education themselves who have the primary responsibility of the quality of the training they organize and the assurance of this quality. This principle might be interesting to the universities in a context of growing competition between higher training systems on an international scale. How to implement it? What are the tools? What are the changes it implies on the entities responsible for the programs? How does it integrate into the institutional system? The pedagogical quality of the training program?

To answer these questions and many others, it is planned to organize a seminar to collect the testimony of the institutions that are already moving in that direction.
